Teacher Answer Key

Case Study

1. Examples: public confession = social pressure/consent; jealousy argument = insecurity/control; disappearance = avoidant distancing; repeated texts/threats = anxious reassurance-seeking and coercion.

2. Healthy line examples: asking permission for public gestures respects consent; "no vague-posting" boundary reduces escalation; repair statements build trust.

Multiple Choice

Short Answer (Sample Responses)

Q1: Public gestures can create pressure that overrides consent. Asking privately first keeps it respectful and truly mutual.

Q2: Movies compress months into minutes, making instant intensity seem normal. Real trust builds over time, so teens may expect "fast = true love."

Q3: "What would make you feel appreciated on Valentine's Day, and what would you rather not do?"
